

Must-Have Checklist for Meaningful Reform: 6 Critical Criteria of an Early Intervention System

1

Be research-based

The University of Chicago and its Center for Data Science and Public Policy is the leading research partner in the development of First Sign® Early Intervention.

2

Go beyond simple triggers

First Sign differentiates what data points matter and takes into consideration context as well as patterns of problematic behavior.

3

Reduce false positives

First Sign takes into account total productivity and only identifies officers who are truly engaged in problematic conduct.

4

Be preventative and proactive

Powered by evidence-based research and analytics, First Sign is preventative by design to notify you at the 'first signs' of a real need to intervene.

5

Be compliant

First Sign supports agencies seeking accreditation by CALEA, incorporates the best practices and elements of the ethics toolkit developed by IACP — and surpasses the performance guidelines on officer conduct recommended by the DOJ.

6

Built to improve accountability

First Sign raises the bar on accountability by evolving and getting smarter over time as new insights are uncovered.

For more information on the only research-based, sole-sourceable EIS in the marketplace, visit www.benchmarkanalytics.com.

